BODEGAS BRECA OLD VINE GARNACHA 2015

This weighty red wine hails from the arid environs of Spain's Calatayud region. The 80+ year old Garnacha vines used for this bottling are planted 'en vaso' (known elsewhere as 'bush vine' or 'gobelet') and scattered in low density throughout the untterraced mountain vineyards of the area. The vines are dry farmed, and almost no human intervention is required or employed to rear the pristine hand-harvested Garnacha grapes used to make this wine. This full-throttle red offers aromas of strawberry liqueur and peppery spice layered over flavors of plum compote, olive tapenade, and hints of underlying minerality. This is a round and massive wine that is developing nicely and will satisfy your thirst for a hearty red wine in the chilly winter weeks to come.

GOOD RIVER BEER

Four Falls Weizenbock from Good River Beer in Denver will satisfy your craving for a good hef while still feeling like something proper to drink while there's snow on the ground. It pours dark amber with a thin, creamy head, but definitely has the banana-like nose of a classic hef, along with some distinct spice aromas. The spice isn't nearly as pronounced on your tongue, where you'll find a clean and refreshing ale up front that melts in your mouth into flavors of banana candy, malted wheat, and hints of caramel and hazelnut. The body is medium to heavy like a traditional bock and it clocks in at 7% ABV, but the sweetness level is very mild in comparison and there's plenty of tongue-tingling carbonation to cut through any syrupiness. Come on in today and pick up a 6 pack or two. Cheers!
