

CLOS DE LOS SIETE MENDOZA RED BLEND 2015

Of the Seven Kingdoms, from Winterfell to the Kingdom of Dorne, who will align against the looming Army of the Dead? How ever this amazing story begins to unfold this weekend you should accompany your entertainment with a wine of the Seven Vineyards, Clos de los Siete Mendoza Red Blend 2015. This wine is comprised of five noble varieties where Malbec rules. 58% Malbec, 23% Merlot, 10% Cabernet Sauvignon, 8% Syrah and 1% Petite Verdot make up this delectable red blend that is rich and complicated in a good way. Dark fruit mingles with hints of aging wood and iron. A silky mouthfeel with an encompassing bouquet that will more than satisfy the King and Queen of your Kingdom. Fantastic with all sorts of grilled meats, turkey legs and gruel. Do not pass this one up for your premier party! - Cheers

I thought that Spring had sprung, but alas. Winter is coming, again, in more ways than one. If you're like me, and like most of the world's population, then you too are excited for the premiere of HBO's final season of Game of Thrones! This week's food pick is a battle of epic proportions in its own. Get your nachos, hamburger sliders and cheese boards ready with a wedge of both Excalibur 6 month and 12-month aged cheddars. Whether you are hosting a G.O.T watching party, watching it by yourself, or impending colder winter-like weather this week has you staying indoors eating all day be sure to have the Excalibur cheddars on hand and ready to go! Challenge your taste buds and try them side by side to see how age effects the overall profile of the cheese. The 6 month usually $5.99, and the 12-month, $6.99, will both be $2 off their original price. Let the battle for Excalibur and the Iron Throne begin! Cheers and Bon Appetit!

SOULCRAFT BREWING

Chile beer can be a little intimidating, but Soulcraft Brewing out of Salida has put out a Green Chile Blonde Ale that's a great example of the style while also serving as a great entry point. It pours clear and golden like a classic American lager with just a bit of foam that doesn't stick around for very long. You can definitely smell the green chile right away, which presents at first as mostly a veggie-ish aroma and only a slight hint of spice. The first sip or two wakes up your palette with a smack of heat, but it's mild enough that you won't be reaching for that emergency glass of milk you poured yourself - just in case. As your tongue acclimates, you'll find a bready, savory malt backbone that is complimented nicely by the spicy finish. The balance is just about spot-on to the point that it's almost crushable, and I can see this becoming one of my warm weather go-to brews, especially paired with some good barbecue and other strongly-flavored summer favorite dishes that need a beer able to punch in their weight class.
