DAISY PINOT GRIGIO 2017

While driving along HWY 36 the other day I noticed all the splashes of purple along the roadside. I immediately thought to myself, "what a perfect time for Daisy Pinot Grigio as my wine of the week." From the brisk morning air to the buds and blooms of spring and the picturesque sunsets just calling for a patio selfie with this amazing bottle Pinot Grigio from the Bieler Family. Charles Bieler has been producing some of our favorite wines for over 20 years, bringing us the Provençal Bieler Rosé, La Jassine Cotes du Rhone Rouge and this Daisy Pinot Grigio 2017. Daisy Pinot Grigio is a blend of 75% Pinot Grigio, 13% Sauvignon Blanc, 10% Riesling and 2% Moscato, and is like running through a field of spring flowers. Beautiful aromatics and an opulence that is proof of a well built wine with notes of grapefruit and licorice springing through a zesty and refreshing finish.

- Cheers!

AMELIA

Several months back I introduced you to Palacios, the first line of authentic Spanish chorizo to be imported into the U.S. This week I have another treat of theirs; Iberico chorizo. Made from Iberico pigs that are indigenous to the Iberian Peninsula in southern Spain, this is one of the most sought after and expensive cuts of meat in the world and I'm delighted to have it on sale this week at only $10.99, usually $14.99! Palacios are masters at curing, and they use simple ingredients; sea salt, smoked paprika and garlic- no nitrates or additives, just pure authentic flavor in every bite. Just one slice and you will quickly be reaching back for another! Be sure to serve this alongside some fresh bread and enjoy with a glass of red wine or an IPA. Cheers and Bon Appetit!

GOOD RIVER BREWING

There are a lot of fruity wheat beers that focus so much on fruit that they forget they're supposed to taste like beer. Good River's Tropical Wheat Ale, I was pleased to discover, is not one of them. It pours almost like a Hefeweizen, with a pale-gold color, just a bit of haze, and a generous, creamy head. Put your nose in the glass, though, and you'll immediately get yanked from a German wheat field straight to a tropical vacation, with sweet and fragrant scents of passion fruit and mango. With each sip comes a citrusy acidity and more of that passion fruit goodness, but it's overall not especially sweet like the can and the aroma might have made you think. Then there's a prominent backbone of wheaty malt on the finish, which really seals the deal. It's fresh, refreshing, and satisfying - everything I look for in a beer at the end of a long day of summer adventuring. Cheers!
