

BODINI

MALBEC 2017

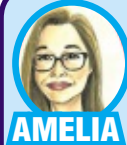

From three thousand feet up in the Northwestern corner of Mendoza to your table. Bodini Malbec 2017 is beautifully bright and lean and at this price point. This wine really delivers and may change your mind about inexpensive Malbec from Argentina. The grapes are hand harvested and the wine not only goes through malolactic fermentation, but it's also unoaked to hold on to the true flavor of the fruit. This style of Malbec is a little restrained but fresh with bright red fruits like Bayberry, Raspberry and strawberry that mingle with easy tannin and a long mouthfeel. While this little gal is pretty lean, she's a ton of fun in the glass and would pair up so nicely with grilled red meats or a big juicy burger! Thumbs up here! -Cheers

This week's food pick is inspired by a childhood memory of mine. I was not always an adventurous eater when I was young, and one thing you could not get me to eat was fish. That was until one day my grandmother made fried fish but told me it was fried chicken, which I loved. So when asked how the fried chicken was I told her it was the best fried chicken I ever had. Then she broke the news that it was fish, schooled by Grandma, good job Grandma, cause now I love fish and have ever since that day. I was reminded of this memory when a friend and co-worker shared a similar story about coercing her young niece and nephew into eating the gluten-free tea loaf breads we carry by Spruce Confections Bakery in Boulder. These delicious breads currently come in two different flavors; Lemon Raspberry Poppyseed Swirl and Chocolate Zucchini. My co-worker told her niece the Lemon Raspberry was Princess Cake and her nephew the Chocolate Zucchini was Monster Cake, and sure enough both reacted the same way to their aunt the way I reacted to my grandma's "fried chicken." So be sure to surprise your taste buds and "Spruce" your day up with one of Spruce Confections gluten free tea loaf breads this week for only $1.99, usually $2.99. Cheers and Bon Appetit!
