

PRATSCH ROSÉ 2019

With every Spring rosé release comes the anticipation to try your favorites from years past. Will they stand up to your fond memories? Year in, year out Pratsch Winery out of Austria surpasses my expectations. My rosé exploration has been focused on Austria for the last few Summers and I don't see myself diverging from this focus in the coming months. The Pratsch family takes the utmost care in their small estate comprised of 13 single vineyards. The vines and wine made from their fruit have been organically certified for over ten years now. And it shows through the wine's focused expression of the alluvial soils found in the glacier formed hills of the South Austrian estate. Aromas of wild sun ripened strawberries and peach, with hints of apple flow from the glass. A slight effervescence brings texture to the palate complemented by citrus and fresh minerality. Try a glass alongside fresh salad greens topped with chicken, strawberries, blueberries, and avocado. Cheers!

In the 1930's Italian immigrants and brothers, Danny and Joe Di Bruno, landed in Philadelphia and started a cheese revolution. They began by opening a neighborhood grocery store in 1934 and 25 years later when the market began to shift into supermarket chains a trip to Switzerland inspired them to turn their grocery store into a gourmet cheese shop and hence the Di Bruno Bros "House of Cheese" came to be. Celebrating their 81st anniversary this year, Di Bruno Bros are a destination icon of Philadelphia but have also gained national and international recognition for their contribution to the culinary world. This week be sure to grab one of their artisan aged cheddar cheese spreads available in four flavors, Port Wine, Garlic & Herb, my personal favorite Bacon Horseradish, and Smoked Gouda and Beer. An excellent addition to any cheese and charcuterie board or used as a spread on a sandwich, Di Bruno Bros. spreads will be on sale this week for $4.99, usually $6.99. Cheers and Bon Appetit!
