

JAMIE

EVOLÚCIO FURMINT 2019

It's one of the oldest designated wine regions in the world and home to perhaps the most celebrated dessert wines in existence. The Hungarian region of Tokaj doesn't strictly produce sweet wines though, some of the greatest values can be found in their dry versions of Furmint. I am excited to incorporate this little-known variety into our 2 for $20 section. Bursting from the glass with honeysuckle, jasmine, key lime, pear, and white peach, the palate is light and refreshing with zippy acidity and notes of peach skin, lemon, and lime zest. Pair with anything from homemade sushi to lemon chicken with broccolini, have a glass as an aperitif, or alongside a wide array of appetizers!

AMELIA

This week I've got a locally made, tasty little cracker that not only has tons of flavor but is also made with ingredients you can feel good about. New Beat Crackers are a delightful, gluten-free cracker, made right in Longmont, CO. Maker and creator of New Beat Crackers, Trish Kurnik, had a life changing accident in 2001 when she was struck by a car while riding her bike. The injuries she sustained triggered the onset of celiac disease, forcing her to change her diet completely. For someone who was a fond lover of all things food this change was quite the challenge, with one of her favorite foods being crackers. But don't worry, this story has a happy ending. Most gluten-free crackers on the market these days are made with highly processed alternative flours, starches, gums, and fillers and most often they fall short in terms of flavor and texture. So, Trish having been a life-long baker decided that if she couldn't find a cracker she loved, she'd make one herself, and hence the inception of New Beat Crackers came to be. Made with nutrient-rich quinoa, these crackers are an excellent source of protein, dietary fiber and they provide all the essential amino-acids. These are, without question, some of the best gluten-free crackers on the market, tasty with all sorts of cheeses and spreads, but also so flavorful and enjoyable on their own. Available in four flavors, Cranberry Chorus, Play it Simple, Sesame Swing and Trio, will be on sale this week for $5.99, usually $8.99 per 4oz pack. Cheers and Bon Appetit!
